VERDICT OF ACCIDENT IN GREAT WESTERN

A verdict of accidental death was returned this morning by the jury empaneled by C. A. Gregson, coroner ex-officio of Esmeralda county, at an inquest held over the body of Golvo Tilman found dead in the Great Western mine Sunday afternoon. Andy J. Simson, mine inspector, came from Carson City expressly for the inquiry as he wanted to satisfy himself that the management of the mine had complied with the law providing for the safety of underground workers. In his investigation the inspector was aided by Roger Foley, district attorney from Goldfield.

In the course of the testimony it was disclosed that the work was being done under contract and that John McGee, the mine manager, had repeatedly warned the contractors to use plenty of timber in their work and take no chances with dangerous ground. The jurors were: Sam Lutz, John Hancock, John Scurlock, Samuel Fox, J. P. Spark and Fred Messenger.

FUMIGATING THE SCHOOL.
Owing to the presence of contagious disease Dr. C. L. Richards deemed it advisable to close the sixth grade class room this afternoon to permit complete fumigation.

MILTON E. LIPMAN, manager of D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," is in camp looking after the presentation of the great picture.

Married man without children whose wife, although registrant, is engaged in useful occupation, is not mainly dependent on his labor for support, for the reason that the wife is skilled in some special class of work which she is physically able to perform and in which she is employed, or in which there is an immediate opening for her under conditions that will enable her to support herself decently and without suffering or hardship.

FORTY SEVEN JOHN SMITH'S IN ONE DRAFT OF RECRUITS IN ONE CAMP

(By Associated Press.)
CAMP KEARNY, Cal., Sept. 10.
There will be 47 John Smiths in the contingent of draft recruits which begin arriving here early this week, if the law of averages hold true, and a corps of sixteen men and one officer already is busy in the division mail offices seeing that mail destined for John Smith, Esq., of San Francisco, does not become confused with that intended for Mr. John Smith of Los Angeles.

For days before recruits began to arrive mail and even telegrams for them were reaching this cantonment, most of it addressed "John Doe, Camp Kearny," with "San Diego" or "Linda Vista" added as an additional indication to the mail clerks of the whereabouts of this cantonment. Neither is necessary, according to Lieut. Arnold Palenske, division mail officer, but what would be appreciated greatly, both by the mail detachment and by the recruit himself, is some such designation as "Recruit Camp" or "Recruit Receiving Camp," preferably the latter on all recruits' mail. This, the lieutenant said, would save some time in the delivery of mail.

All mail addressed "blind" as the clerks in the postoffice here call addresses which do not name the regiment and company of which the addressee is a member, are sent to the divisional mail detachment for delivery. Those with proper addresses go direct to the regimental postoffices and are delivered at once.

The work of the mail detachment is made up mainly of searches through the indexes which list every man in this cantonment. Most difficulty is had with mail so addressed that there is no doubt as to which of several men it is intended to reach. These card indexes are arranged in sections, in alphabetical order, and one or more men are assigned to each section.

As the mail for the recruits comes from the local postoffice it is divided into sections corresponding with these files and then, letter by letter, the men search through the index files until they find the man for whom it is intended. These files

County or municipal officer.
Highly trained fireman or policeman in service of municipality.
Necessary custom house clerk.
Necessary employee of United States in transmission of the mails.
Necessary artificer or workman in United States armory or arsenal.
Necessary employee in service of United States.

Class 4—Man whose wife or children are mainly dependent on his labor for support.
Mariner actually employed in sea service of citizen or merchant in the United States.

Class 5—Officer—legislative, executive, or judicial of the United States or of state, territory, or district of Columbia.

Regularly or duly ordained minister of religion.
Student who on May 18, 1917, or on May 20, 1918, or since May 20, 1918, was preparing for ministry in recognized theological or divinity school or who on May 25, 1918, or since May 20, 1918, was preparing for practice of medicine and surgery in recognized medical school.

Person in military or naval service of United States.
Alien enemy.
Resident alien (not an enemy) who claims exemption.

Person totally and permanently physically or mentally unfit for military service.

Licensed pilot, actually employed in the pursuit of his vocation.
Person discharged from the army on the ground of alienage or upon diplomatic request.
Subject or citizen of co-belligerent country who has enlisted or enrolled in the forces of such country under the terms of a treaty between such country and the United States providing for reciprocal military service of their respective citizens and subjects.

Subject or citizen of neutral country who has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States and has withdrawn such intention under the provisions of act of congress approved July 9, 1918, and selective service regulations.

are made up of cards bearing the full name, home address of each man. They are filled out almost as soon as they reach camp; indeed, they are the second paper made out in the receiving office for each new man.

The old address of the recruit is of particular value in determining whether a particular piece of mail belongs to him, for, lacking other information, the mail detachment holds it. It is reasonable to suppose that a letter addressed to William A. Jones, postmarked at Chico, California, is more likely to belong to the William A. Jones, who hails from that town than it is to be the property of a man of the same name who comes from Salt Lake City.

The only safe, sure method of insuring prompt delivery of a recruit's mail, however, is to address it properly. Lieutenant Palenske declared. A model address follows: "John W. Smith, Company No. 6, Recruit Receiving Depot, Camp Kearny, California."

Until the recruit has reached here, however, and been assigned to a company, or until he can write home and give the number of his recruit company, "Recruit Receiving Camp" will serve as an ample indicator of his location and will insure reasonably prompt delivery of his mail.

FATHER CRONIN GIVEN A WARM SEND OFF

Father P. J. Cronin, pastor of the Goldfield Catholic church was given a royal send off this morning in his home town where the citizens turned out en masse and escorted the priest to the station at Columbia to the strains of patriotic airs discoursed by a brass band. The demonstration was one of the largest seen in the southern camp as the departing chaplain had established himself firmly in the affections of all classes during the short time he has been in the community. Last night the Knights of Columbus held a reception at their council chamber and presented the retiring chaplain of the council with a well filled purse.

The presentation was made, the occasion for many felicitous speeches. A large delegation from Tonopah attended to join in the congratulations. This morning on the arrival of Father Cronin in Tonopah he was greeted by a delegation representing the fourth degree of the Knights of Columbus who presented him with a purse with the compliments of the boys. There was no speechmaking but the departing priest was overcome by surprise and said he was glad that he would not be called on for a speech as his heart was too full for utterance.

HOME OF GERMAN FILLED WITH ARMS
ROME, Sept. 10.—A strange and no less significant discovery has been made near Mentana, in this province. Ten years or so ago a wealthy German manufacturer built a splendid villa there, near the spot where the battle of the same name was fought. The German, Henry Karbelik, lived in the villa till the outbreak of the war compelled him to go to Germany. He left the care of the place to trusted agents, to whom he confided also the cultivation of the ground.

The villa had been built to resemble a fortress rather than a dwelling, but this was taken lightly as an eccentricity of the builder. When war came the residents of the neighborhood began to think about it. They recalled that several years before many large and heavy cases had arrived from Germany addressed to Karbelik, who took them to his villa.

Their suspicions grew that the place might conceal a nest of enemies, but the authorities were inclined to look upon their comments as neighborhood gossip. Finally they were forced to notice that some of the parapets did have a really modern military aspect, while some cement walls bore a strange likeness to those in fortifications.

A squad of gendarmes was ordered to inspect the premises. They found in the sub-cellar rifles, guns, pistols and munitions of war, while the Corriere della Sera offers its authority that machine guns were present. Platforms of cement such as the Germans built in France were also found.

AMUSEMENTS

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD"
"Hearts of the World" comes here with as great a mission—it brings to you here—it is France—France as she was four years ago this spring—the apple trees were in bloom, the pastures extended like great carpets with green sprouting grain; the children played in the streets of the peaceful French villages and fancies of youth turned lightly to thoughts of love. "Hearts of the World" has been accorded the greatest ovation in screen history. Eighteen months in the making of this wonderful masterpiece and it is considered D. W. Griffith's greatest achievement, even greater than the "Birth of a Nation." One million fighting men and 20,000 horses in action; miles of artillery; squadrons of airplanes under fire; fleets of Zeppelins and charge of tanks; the gas and flame projectors in the midst of their hellish work; actual battle scenes filmed on the battle fields of France and through it all runs the sweetest love story ever told. Critics and theatergoers fall for words to describe this great drama of deathless love. "Hearts of the World" whisks you through space to the scenes of war activities "over there" as nothing else in the world can do. It is a picture that will live for years in the memory of all who see it, and the acting is the best that has ever appeared on the screen. Nothing was left undone and each detail had the personal attention of the world's greatest motion picture director, D. W. Griffith. You will actually live the Paris with Lillian Gish and the little Alexander boy throughout the picture. One show, starting at 8 o'clock promptly. All seats on the lower floor reserved and reserve seats are now on sale at the Union Drug store. Tomorrow matinee at 2:15 for the benefit of the school children.
